TOEFL Reading Section

The reading section appears first in the TOEFL test pattern. The primary goal of the TOEFL reading section is to assess the candidate's ability to understand English and provide an accurate response to it.

- TOEFL reading test pattern is related to academic study materials; 3-4 reading passages of approximately 700 words are provided as prompts; 10 questions will be asked from each passage.
- The TOEFL iBT reading pattern has a time limit of 54 to 72 minutes.
- Adapted from university-level textbooks
- TOEFL reading passages cover a wide range of topics.

- 3–4 passages, 10 questions each
- Total no. of questions: About 40

Types of Questions in Reading Section

- Factual Information and Negative Factual Information: The major ideas, supporting facts, and definitions are targeted by the Factual Information question structure. The main distinction between negative factual information questions and factual information questions is identifying the single wrong answer from a list of 4. When answering negative factual information questions, keep the words 'NOT' and 'EXCEPT' in mind.
- Inference and Rhetorical: The TOEFL exam pattern and reading syllabus inference questions are intended to explain and identify the ambiguous statement of the passage. Words like 'INFERRED,' 'IMPLIES,' and 'SUGGESTS' can help you identify inference questions. Rhetorical purpose questions are very similar, with the exception of answering the question 'WHY,' which states the purpose.
- Recognizing Vocabulary: Probably the easiest questions to answer, vocabulary questions in the TOEFL latest reading pattern require candidates to discover and answer the meanings of particular highlighted words in the passage.
- Sentence Explanation: These type of questions in the TOEFL reading pattern requires candidates to detect the difference between two very similar sentences and choose the one that is explained in a simpler manner.
